Visiting Assistant Professor of Rhetoric and Writing Studies

Position Summary

The Department of English at the University of North Carolina Greensboro invites applications for a one-year Visiting Assistant Professor position in Rhetoric and Composition, to begin August 1, 2020.

Primary responsibilities for this position include teaching undergraduate courses in contemporary rhetoric, digital rhetoric, and other areas connected to the successful candidate’s areas of expertise.

Applicants should demonstrate excellence in teaching and a commitment to working with students from diverse backgrounds.

We offer competitive salaries and benefit packages, a 3/3 teaching load, and a collegial community of rhetoric and writing studies faculty and graduate students.

UNCG is a doctoral granting university with a professionally active English department and flourishing graduate programs. UNCG is proud of the diversity of its student body, and we seek to attract an equally diverse applicant pool. We are an EOE/AA/M/F/D/V employer and are strongly committed to increasing faculty diversity.

Minimum Qualifications
Candidates must hold or anticipate a Ph.D. in Rhetoric and Composition or a related discipline by August 1, 2020.

Preferred Qualifications
Experience teaching at the undergraduate level; experience teaching in online or hybrid formats; and expertise related to contemporary rhetoric, digital rhetoric, and digital composing and design.

To Apply
Please submit a letter of application, a CV, and a list of references to Paul Cloninger at pcclonin@uncg.edu. The deadline for priority review is June 30, but applications will continue to be considered until the position is filled.

More information may be obtained from Professor Scott Romine, Head of the Department of English (sbromine@uncg.edu).

Requests for disability accommodations can also be made to Professor Scott Romine, Head of the Department of English (sbromine@uncg.edu).
Applicant Documents

Required Documents

1. Resume/CV
2. Cover Letter
3. List of References with contact information