

CALLING ALL UNCG GRADUATE STUDENTS

Connect with a faculty or staff mentor who has knowledge, experience or interests in the following:

Athletes
BIPOC
Careers outside of academia
Community Engagement
Creative fields
Female-Identified / Woman in Academia
First generation
General support
Immigrant International
Language learners
Latinx/a/o
LGBTQIA+
Low Income
Member of marginalized community
Mental/physical disabilities
Multicultural/Bicultural
Non-traditional student
Parent in graduate school/academia
Religious minority
Social justice and policy
STEM
Time management
Translation/Interpretation
Veteran
Work-Life balance
Writing process

A program of the College of Arts & Sciences
at UNC Greensboro

Are you interested in expanding your network and mentorship opportunities across campus?

The College of Arts & Sciences' (CAS) Diversity Committee has launched a new initiative to support a sense of belonging and mentorship of graduate students from diverse backgrounds, broadly defined.

Students can use these connections to complement their current mentorship in areas that may not be represented by their current mentors, talk with folks outside of their department, or connect about other issues of professional development.

Mentorship could be one well-timed conversation, a few meetings, or even a semesterly check-in.

Find a mentor at aas.uncg.edu/diversity/casconnects

And join us for the following event:

CASConnects End-of-Semester Check-In

Talk to other CASConnects mentors and mentees to share lessons learned and discuss recommendations to improve CASConnects in subsequent semesters

Tuesday, April 20, 3:30 p.m.
Via Zoom

Meeting ID: 962 6415 0061
Passcode: 145831

